The camp, known for its exciting "Cosmic Adventures" theme, serves children aged 6-12 and offers a range of activities designed to stimulate creativity, encourage physical activity, and foster lasting friendships among Eastvale's youth.

"Having Congresswoman Torres join us and see first-hand the impact of our programs is truly inspiring. Her support underscores the significance of our efforts to enhance community engagement and well-being through innovative and inclusive programming," said Steve Lawson, JCSD's Director of Parks & Recreation.

The Seniors and Students Program at Desi House and the Summer Camp are just two examples of JCSD's commitment to serving its community with excellence and creativity. These programs not only provide essential services but also enrich the lives of participants across all age groups.
